It is obviously no surprise that plants much like humans, and a lot of animals can carry some genes handed down from their parents. This characteristic of carrying similar genes illustrates that the new seeds will most likely have genetic features of their parent plants. The better the parent plants are, the more potent the new seeds are going to be. I learned that more than many US states opting to legalize cannabis for medical use and more looking to follow, it would appear that the experts have had a change of heart.

This was a great read about building a weed farm and the author did a great job making the steps simple and understand how to grow marijuana effectively and avoid any mistakes that would cost you more money or lose time trying to fix those mistakes. He highlights each step in detail what to do and how to do it. This book is really good for anyone that has never grown marijuana and just want to plant their first plant into the ground and have it grow then smoke it. But great read overall, just don't get in trouble guys.
